

Announcement

As we already announced, Indian Journal of Physics is being copublished with Springer since January, 2009 with a view to enhancing its global visibility. In order to attain international standard in all its facets, IJP now endeavors to transform itself into a completely online mode for submission, reviewing etc from January, 2010. As a prelude to this, we have decided to host a trial version of the facility that would make it temporarily online as far as practicable from July, 2009. We encourage our learned contributors to submit their manuscripts online by entering the site <http://www.editorialmanager.com/injp> and creating a login for themselves. Till the submission and processing get fully online, we request our learned contributors to submit their manuscripts to the site with a copy to the email id iip@iacs.res.in. We regret inconvenience, if any, during the transition from the manual to the online mode.

We solicit your cooperation in helping IJP attain truly international standard and appeal to the scientists all over the world to submit some of their best work in IJP.
